USE OF DETACHABLE LINING

Careful Dresser Will See the Advantages That Come From This Simple Precaution.

The careful woman will find it advisable to instruct her seamstress to make a detachable lining of fine net or habutal silk to wear beneath the blouse, of georgette crepe, of radium or of some one of the new striped silks. Such a foundation should have sleeves rather loosely shaped and terminating just above the elbow. In warm weather the perspiration across the back and on the arms is apt to stain or fade the fine material of the outer garment.

The lining should be made separately and then loosely tacked to the inside of the blouse about the neck and shoulders. It will then be easily removed for a visit to the laundry or for other renovation. Two linings for a fine waist are better than one, because this insures a greater preservation of the outer fabric through cleanliness of the inner, and while one lining is being laundered the other may be readily adjusted to the blouse. This same idea applies to the frock of silk or of satin. Of course, it is not advisable where the outer fabric is of sheer material like organdie, thin voile or kindred materials.

Allowance should be made for shrinkage when making up a new blouse or dress. A couple of extra blouse inches should be extended beneath the belt and at the top of the skirt the material may be turned back so that after it comes from the first tubbing it may be let down without serious inconvenience.

NEW IDEAS IN HANDKERCHIEF

One is to Make Them of Chiffon, With White or Colored Cord Decorations.

The newest thing in handkerchiefs is made of chiffon with a white or colored cord decoration. Some in colors have narrow outlinings and rolled hems in black. Then there are crepe de chine handkerchiefs in dainty colors with a self or contrasting border. Such handkerchiefs are worn with party dresses.

The rage for color has also reached the domain of handkerchiefs in linen and cotton. They are seen in large quantities. Some have colored centers with white polka dots and others have colored cord decoration. Some in color a very narrow border in color. Handkerchiefs of Madeira embroidery are dainty. They are embroidered in colors as well as white. Some have tiny scallops edged in blue, pink, lavender or green. Others have a sprig of flowers embroidered in one corner, as well as the scalloped edge. The shops are showing a handkerchief with the center either made of a figured material, as sheer as goods can be, or barred, or quite plain, with a tiny one-eighth-inch hem and the neatest little real lace border one-eighth of an inch wide. It will wash well, as most hand-made laces do.

MINARET OVERSKIRT

A Novel Minaret Overskirt of Blue Serge, Blouse of White Mousseline, Trimmed With Bias Folds of Blue Cloth.

Concerning Spring Dresses. For afternoon dresses materials with a little more body than we have used for a few years are selected of such quality as the new fine taffeta, failles and corded silks and wholly adequate are they to give the bouffant effect that all are demanding. With this effect of the skirts come the tight-fitting bodices with their narrow shoulders and satin sleeves. Narrow bodice effect is trying to the majority of figures, but there is hardly a doubt but some variation will result that will make it more becoming or that constantly viewing this style on all sides will in the end win us over to its possible charms.
